She had changed the clothes she wears
Changed the color of her hair
And the music that she played, wasn't the same

With a new man in her life
So determined to make it right
She would twist and turn to keep this spark alive

But Mary's sunshine dream hit reality black Like a branch you bend to much you know she just snapped

Mary lost herself, Pleasing someone else her reflection an empty shell, Mary lost herself

At the time it seemed so right everybody's got to compromise but she never found the strength to draw the line

Mary's sunshine world now gone to black
If you bend a branch to much you know it just snaps

Mary lost herself, Pleasing someone else
A lonely soul that's got nothing left, Mary lost herself

She had changed the clothes she wares
Changed the color of her hair
Trying harder now to find Mr. Right

But the love she lacks inside sends her searching for him blind
She needs to take the time to love herself

You've got to love yourself before someone else...
